Are you a high school student in need of expertise from a UCSD mentor (i.e. Science, Technology, etc.), but can’t find someone willing to return your emails?

Does a science fair project have you worried? Has your independent study project hit a snag?

Need to find a path that leads to an internship? Looking for a letter of recommendation?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, we have just the opportunity for you!

UCSD is offering its inaugural Mentor Assistance Program (MAP) for high school students seeking mentor guidance to support their research interests. MAP’s mission is to provide a pathway for student researchers to gain access to experts in their field of interest. These mentoring relationships will enhance the students’ desire to learn, teach, and conduct research in a variety of Humanities and STEM fields.

High school student applications will be made available on September 1, 2015

Visit http://education.sdsc.edu/studenttech/?page_id=879 or email amason@sdsc.edu for more information